Mr. F. M. Rothrock, Chairman of the Finance Committee of Council, expresses himself as believing that the five mill levy will be ample to take care of Washington's needs. Favors a sewer system.

Chairman F. M. Rothrock Expresses Cheering Views On the Taxation Situation

Is Firmly in Favor of Permanent Improvements, Such as a Good Sewer System, Even If it Requires a Bond Issue. Inclines to Views of Mayor on Special Assessment Bonds and Street Paving Bonds—Details Gloomy Conditions Existing Six Years Ago.

HIS VIEWS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Mr. Frank M. Rothrock the chairman of the Finance Committee of Council, when asked his views upon the all important question of taxation, the effect of the new one per cent. tax law on Washington's financial affairs in view of the present condition of the duplicate, expressed himself as firm in the belief that an honest conscientious return of the personal property in the city and in each taxing district of the county would solve all taxation problems.

The owners failing to return all of their property for taxation voluntarily then that aggressive, positive action by the Board of Review to bring this property on to the duplicate.

If all of the personal property in Washington was on the duplicate at its true and full value, the same as real estate is now, the city would experience no difficulty in getting along with a two mill levy or less

Mr. Rothrock said.

The chairman of Council Finance Committee also called attention to the fact that when practically the same Council went into office several holders of portions of the city's bonded indebtedness were "running around with a fist full of coupons bearing compound interest," the Water Works Company had an unpaid bill against the city amounting to $3500 and the Gas and Electric Company an unpaid bill amounting to about $6500. In addition to this the receipts from the Dow tax had just been cut off and many were predicting that disasters dire would overwhelm the city in its financial affairs.

Mr. Rothrock says that as a citizen of Washington he cannot help but feel a pride when he compares our city and its progress with some of its neighbors, who have as much and more to "live on" than we have. He is extremely optimistic about the outlook and expresses great confidence in Washington's ability to come through this transition state without serious trouble.

FAVORS SEWERS.

He also expressed himself as being strongly in favor of permanent improvements, such as sewers and the like even if the city was compelled to issue bonds to raise the money to carry on the work.

He also called attention to the fact that notwithstanding a substantial cut in the figures of the Mayor's Budget last year, when Council levied a sum which was $3000 less than the sum asked for by the Mayor that citizens of Washington noticed no reduction in their taxes when they went to the treasurer's office to pay up.

In view of this, he said, Council's committee had determined not to waste time in figuring how the levy this year could be cut, but to certify the maximum levy and let others do the figuring on their districts.

Heartily in accord with the movement to give the new additions all the advantages of city life he would move cautiously in the matter and only grant those improvements as the city's finances will enable it to do the work.

In regard to the Mayor's suggestion that the special assessment improvements and the brick street improvements can be provided for outside of the maximum levy of 5 mills, Mr. Rothrock expressed himself as being in accord.

Speaking of the special assessment street improvements he did not believe those matters need now enter into the calculation because the cost of the improvement had been certified and taxed directly against property abutting on the improvements and that while the city's own bonds were out for the cost of the work yet the payment of special assessments by property owners yearly would take care of the bonds as they matured.

In regard to this matter Mr. Rothrock said there need be no fear of liability on the part of the city if the proceedings were all regular and as to that he could not answer positively.

That matter he said had all been left with the city solicitor and the administrative branch of the city government.

In the absence of anything to the contrary we must all presume he said that the proper legal steps had been taken and that the special assessments would come in when due.

In regard to the payment of the brick street bonds he is inclined to take the view suggested by the Mayor, that the money to pay those bonds can be provided for by a levy outside of the maximum levy because the indebtedness was heretofore incurred by a vote of the people and the law seems to specifically except that character of indebtedness.

He said, however, that he believed the city could get along on the 5 mill levy and take care of the brick street bonds inside of that levy.

In speaking about the matter with the County Auditor he said that that official expressed himself as confident that the present duplicate would at least reach $7,000,000, thus providing a fund nearly $700,000 greater to which the levy would attach than the amount estimated by the Mayor in his budget.

This, both Mr. Rothrock and the County Auditor considered a conservative estimate of the amount by which the present duplicate will be increased.

More confusion incident to so radical a change would result in Mr. Rothrock's opinion than of real damage to the city's financial resources.

Mr. Rothrock is a firm believer in the ability of Washington citizens to do when the occasion requires and he believes that the present flurry will prove no exception to the rule and that when the real test comes Washington will come forward handsomely with the needed cash.

He believes in economy now as he always has. He does not desire to criticize any other official and believes all should work hand in hand in the earnest and conscientious endeavor to get smoothly into running order the law which the legislature has laid down and by which we must be governed.

Funk will be followed by Edward Hines, who is charged with having requested the $10,000 contribution from him to aid in Lorimer's election. Democratic leaders summoned also.

The attitude of the president on tariff revision at this time promises to have a still further depressing effect on the efforts of Senators looking to a plan of tariff revision.

TAFT STANDING PAT WILL POSITIVELY REFUSE TO PERMIT TARIFF REVISION

Leaders of Both Political Parties in the Senate Have Been Made Wise to the Views of the President—Objects Strenuously to Any Amendment of the Reciprocity Measure Lowering the Tax Rates.

TWO SURPRISES SPRUNG

Columbus, O., June 26.—Interest in the trial of Rodney J. Diegel will turn this week to the defense that will be made. Witnesses called so far throw very little light on the subject. Senators have been subpoenaed in force, some of them, presumably, as character witnesses. Newspaper men and others are also under subpoena.

Whether Diegel himself will be placed on the stand is not known. There were two surprises in the case so far. First, the defense admitted the Andrews note left for Smiley at the Chittenden hotel was written by Andrews. It was written only a short time before Andrews is alleged to have bartered away his vote and senatorial honor in room 317 at the Chittenden. It said: "Be back Monday, when you can see me." It proves Andrews' presence in the hotel.

The second came in the even-honors' compromise reached in regard to the dictagraph record made by Stenographer Walcutt in room 316. The names will be taken off and the conversation will be given on the stand by the stenographer as "A voice said," "A voice replied."

WILL VETO RECIPROCITY BILL

Tells Senate Leaders That Measure Must Come to Him Free From Amendment of Any Kind If He Is Expected to Affix His Signature. Breach Between Democrats and Insurgents Grows Wider and Wider and End Is Not Yet.

Washington, June 26.—That President Taft is opposed to any tariff revision at this time has been made perfectly clear to leaders in the senate. The president objects not only to any amendment to the reciprocity bill lowering tariff rates, but believes that the program for passing independent bills, revising schedules, is ill advised. His attitude, which has become known since his return, will have a still further depressing influence on the efforts of Senator Wesley Jones and others looking to a plan of tariff revision in which Republican regulars and insurgents were to unite and relieve the consumer and confuse the Democrats. The plan has already met the disapproval of some Republican leaders, who point out that nothing could come of such a Republican legislative program while Democrats control the house. President Taft believes that tariff revision should wait upon the reports of the tariff board.

Will Outline Plan.

The president, it is believed, will outline a plan of tariff revision based on the board's report when congress meets in regular session in December. The next important speech he is to deliver, at Indianapolis on July 4, the president will deal with the general subject of tariff revision. It is regarded as certain that he would veto the Canadian reciprocity bill if it comes to him loaded down with amendments dealing with tariff revision, and there is little doubt also that he will decline to approve the farmers' free list bill and the other tariff measures of Democratic origin, if these pass the senate.

President Taft's friends believe that he will be the gainer politically by turning his back on tariff revision plans now and withholding his support until he has a report next winter from a board of experts.

The Canadian reciprocity bill will probably be debated with some earnestness in the present week. Senator LaFollette's amendments carrying general revision will probably be unfolded before the senators' gaze within a few days. The Democratic senate conference is likely to shed some light on the situation. While matters are still rather chaotic, the president has been advised by senate leaders that a vote on the Canadian bill will be reached earlier than expected. As to how long the tariff bills may be before the senate, there is still nothing definite.

Coalition Dream Fades Away.

The possibility of a coalition between Democrats and insurgent Republicans in the senate on a tariff revision program is more remote than ever. The insurgents are beginning to turn against their allies, the Democrats: they are charging that the Democratic leaders in the senate are working in harmony with the regular Republicans to pass Canadian reciprocity without amendment and then get away after a show of consideration the other tariff bills. The insurgents say the Democrats do not want to see legislation enacted revising tariff schedules downward at this time. "They are playing politics with the question to keep it alive for their next campaign," said an insurgent senator.

The insurgents say that the tariff amendments will have to be fully de-Dictagraph a Witness at the Trial of Members Of the Ohio Legislature Indicted For Bribery.

STENOGRAPHER RECORDING CONVERSATION

A mechanical device called the dictagraph is being used at the trial of Ohio legislators charged with bribery. The dictagraph is a highly sensitized telephone, the transmitter of which is placed in a room where the talking of which a record is desired is done. The wires run to an adjoining room, where a stenographer receives and records the conversation. By means of the testimony of this machine the prosecution expects to implicate the legislators. The machine was not employed at the trial of Representative Nye, who was acquitted, but is being used at the trial now under way of Rodney J. Diegle, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, indicted on a charge of accepting a $200 bribe and also for aiding three senators to obtain a bribe of $200 each.

REPEATS HIS STORY OF BIG SLUSH FUND BEFORE THE INQUISITORS

Funk, General Manager International Harvester Company, Appeared Today Before the Lorimer Investigating Committee of the Senate—Will Furnish First Direct Evidence to Sustain Charges.

WILL BE FOLLOWED BY HINES

Lorimer's Election to United States Senate Will Be Viewed From All Angles by Dillingham and Associates, Who Have Invited Treasurer Tilden to Appear Before Them to Tell What He Knows of $100,000 Raised to Defeat Hopkins.

Washington, June 26.—Today's witness before the committee of senators who are investigating charges of corruption in the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois is Clarence C. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company.

Mr. Funk's testimony will be the first direct evidence obtained by the committee as to the alleged request for a contribution of $10,000 from the harvester company, which Mr. Funk charges was made by Edward Hines or the Edward Hines Lumber company.

Mr. Funk will be followed by Edward Hines, who is charged with having requested the $10,000 contribution from Mr. Funk. Edward Tilden, president of the National Packing company, who Funk says was mentioned by Hines as the receiver of the alleged $100,000 corruption fund, will also be heard this week. When these three witnesses have been heard the main story of the inquiry will be revealed to the members of the committee, and subsequent witnesses will be called to amplify and corroborate Funk's story. It is probable also that Governor Deen of Illinois and several other less important witnesses will testify this week.

Sullivan to Appear.

A subpoena has been issued for Roger Sullivan, Democratic national committee man from Illinois, whose name was mentioned by Herman H. Kohlseat, editor and publisher of the Chicago Record-Herald. Mr. Sullivan has never appeared before either the senate committee on privileges and elections or the Helm committee of the Illinois legislature, which investigated the Lorimer election last winter. While the members of the committee do not know whether or not Mr. Sullivan has any valuable information on the subject, Chairman Dillingham thought it advisable to summon him on account of his prominent position in Illinois politics.

If You Haven't Read The Classified Column You Haven't Read The Paper.

baired before there is any agreement fixing a day for a vote on Canadian reciprocity.

"It will be six weeks at least before there is an agreement to vote on Canadian reciprocity," said one of the leading insurgent senators. "The situation is now reversed in the senate. Some time ago the Democratic senators were declaring that the insurgents would be made to fish or cut bait on the question of relieving the consumer from the iniquities of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. The Democrats declared that they would put up to the insurgent brethren the house tariff bills and compel them to vote for or against them. Now the insurgents are coming forward with a tariff and revision program aggressively, and declare that the Democrats are seeking to evade the issue. There is every indication that a bitter struggle is just ahead in the senate between the insurgents and Democrats, in which each side will try to fix upon the other the responsibility for delaying or defeating general tariff revision.

Decree of Mayor Being Carried Out

The heavy fine and a threat of carrying into execution a workhouse sentence if he did not clean up his premises, install more sanitary vaults and give his family better treatment, has had its effect on John Dailey, who was taken before Mayor Allen on a charge of non-compliance with the Board of Health ordinance requiring proper closets or vaults, and given a suspended fine of $550 and costs last Saturday.

Saturday immediately after dinner Dailey appeared at the Mayor's office and asked that the Health Officer point out just what the Board wanted done in "flat iron row" at the intersection of Columbus avenue and Market street, and other property. Health Officer Howell went at once and laid out the work and Dailey set to work immediately to make the necessary improvements to comply with the order. It is said that his family is receiving better attention than previously, also.

The big sale of Mandolins, Violins and Guitars is now going on at the Washington Music Co.

Witness Threatened In Dillard Case

An interesting point developed in the trial of William Dillard in Springfield Saturday, when John Gory, an ex-saloonist of London was put on the witness stand and testified that Henry Dillon, father of the murdered boy, had telephoned to him (Gory) and told to inform Jas. M. Goings that if he came to Springfield and testified as he said he would do, that he would never get back to London alive. Gory delivered the message as requested he claims.

More than half of the witnesses for the defendant have been examined, and it is expected that the case will go to the jury by Wednesday. Members of the Dillard family will not be called until the last day of the trial.

Martha Capps Sues For Large Sum of Money Old Transactions Attacked

Suit for $6,710 with interest, the principal and interest on a note for $500 and interest on a note for $300 is what Martha Capps, a well known resident of southern Fayette county asks in a suit filed in Common Pleas court against M. E. Priddy.

Mrs. Capps states three causes of action, the first being interest on a note for $300 which was executed May 12, 1900, and the principal of which was paid on December 2, 1910. She states that the note was payable at the end of one year, and asks that interest be allowed her for the $300 during the period the note was carried.

The plaintiff alleges in her second cause that on May 9, 1910, a note for $500 bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent., and due in one year, was made, and that none of the principal or interest has been paid.

The third cause is for the non-payment of rents accruing on a farm of 190 acres which she leased to the defendant, who was to pay her a just and fair rate of interest. This lease commenced March 1, 1900, and extended until the first day of March this year. She alleges that he occupied the farm and in that time paid and some $15 per year which he paid to her in small amounts.

The total amount due her for rentals after all other expense has been deducted, is $6,710 with interest on the various amounts from year to year.

The case will be closely watched by citizens of Perry and Green townships where both parties to the suit are known. Attorneys Post and Reid and Humphrey Jones represent the plaintiff.

Four Young Men Get Stiff Fines

"Guilty or not guilty?" was the question which brought a chorus of "guilty" from Melvin Kuhn, Harry Helmer, Elmer Moore and Howard Ault, the first three of Columbus and Ault, of Newark, when they were arraigned before the mayor Monday morning on a charge of riding trains preferred against them by B. & O. detective Kennedy.

The boys were nabbed Saturday night in riding "A. No. 1" style, and were placed in jail where they whiled away the long hours until given a chance to plead. Each was given $15 and costs, and two days to raise the funds. Harry Helmer said he could not do it, and was told that the workhouse would be his lot in that case. Ault was turned loose because he was suffering from a badly injured foot, and had but one arm.

The boys told stories of hard luck, and one of them stated that it was his first time to be arrested. Kuhn and Moore agreed to communicate with their parents at once and raise the price to freedom and fare home.

Train Jumper Turned Loose

Monday morning George Reifsnider, giving his home as Akron, Ohio, was given his freedom after six days of waiting in the county jail, where he was placed by B. & O. detective, Raphael Kennedy, charged with riding trains contrary to the peace and dignity of the state of Ohio, and incidentally, the B. & O. railroad.

Reifsnider was fined last week and had been waiting until his wife could forward money. The money arrived and he was turned loose.

Ross County Farmer Denies Claims Record

The Chillicothe News Advertiser says:

"George F. Heibel, of High Banks, was in the city today and took exception to the statement of a Washington C. H. farmer, that he was the first to cut wheat in Ohio, because he commenced on the 17th. Mr. Heibel began cutting wheat on the 14th of June and had the work all done by the 17th. Mr. Heibel is sure he has a record.

"Liberty township farmers also came to the front this year by having their wheat bound by having the binder run by a gas engine. Heretofore the binders were managed by a team, but this year the horses only guided the binder, a team being used and the gas engine did the rest. The farmers were pleased with the work.

The statement to which Mr. Heibel, the Ross county farmer takes exception is that of Mr. B. C. Mace, who cut his wheat on the 16th of June, and claimed the taste record for early cutting.

Local Showers Tie Up Harvest

Wheat harvest and clover hay harvest have been delayed in many sections by local showers the past few days, just enough rain falling to stop work in the harvest fields.

As a rule, however, harvest has been progressing very nicely, and the wheat is better than at first reported. The clover hay harvest is a big one, the crop being unusually good with a large acreage.

Miss Grace Leach Undergoes Operation

A most interesting operation took place yesterday at Dr. Hazzard's office upon Miss Grace Leach, of Mt. Sterling. Miss Leach has suffered greatly from a pots fracture of one limb since July last. Dr. Geo. A. Still of Kirksville, Mo., performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Lucy Pine, Dr. Decatur and Dr. Hazzard.

Miss Leach held her own bravely and is getting along nicely today. Dr. Still, who is chief surgeon of the College of America School of Osteopathy, in Kirksville, Mo., returned to his home last evening.

SUMPTUOUS DINNER.

One of the most enjoyable of social affairs was the birthday dinner given Mrs. Jane Van Pelt at her home on Market street Saturday.

It was supposed to be a surprise and every-one came bringing baskets loaded with everything delicious in the culinary line. However, Mrs. Van Pelt had gotten an inkling and was in readiness with her own contributions to the feast.

There were 46 relatives and friends from Washington, Staunton and vicinities, and the occasion, with its sumptuous dinner and good time, one that will not soon be forgotten.

Attending from a distance were Mrs. Grace Trout and daughter, of Springfield; Mrs. Russel Evick and daughter, Miss Sophia Mark, Columbus; Mrs. Johnson, Sabina.

J. O. U. A. M. ATTEND SERVICES.
The Junior Order United American Mechanics attended divine services at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

There was a large representation of the order, filling the body of the auditorium specially reserved.

Rev. Campbell delivered an excellent sermon "Americanism and the Individual," prepared in the order's honor and touching upon its patriotic principles.

Mrs. Wirt Shoop sang a beautiful solo and Mrs. Davis, organist, contributed special music.

The big sale of Mandolins, Violins and Guitars is now going on at the Washington Music Co.

VACATION TIME.

Often it is a Mere Farce to the Busy Wife of the President.

MRS. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

About this season of the year the first lady in the land packs her household effects, or at least some portion of them, and transfers herself and family from the White House at Washington to a temporary White House in more rural regions.

With the Roosevelts it was home to Oyster Bay, but with the Tafts it is to a rented villa at Beverly, Mass. No doubt the going home of the Roosevelts was accomplished with a minimum of fuss and trouble, for in going back to one's own home new and stylish wardrobes are not required nor is it necessary to carry along this or that convenience which sojourn in even the most carefully fitted fashionable villa will not supply.

To leave the White House household in such order that its domestic machinery will run smoothly until her return, to superintend dressmaking and packing on a large scale, these are some of the worries that confront the first lady in the land on retiring to the semi-privacy of the vacation at Beverly.

Fortunately the summer White House is located in a region where rest and invigorating air are to be obtained and those bores of great people, the lion hunters, have little chance to reach them.

The house is located on the crest of a hill, five minutes from the water, where yachts may anchor. Golfing is excellent, the neighbors are agreeable and unobtrusive, and, it is to be hoped, the summer will afford the first lady in the land that rest and recreation which will completely build her up after her late illness and permit her once more to assume the place as White House hostess, which, during her indisposition, her daughter, Miss Helen, has been so ably filling.

A BALTIMORE BEAUTY.

Her Engagement to Alfred Vanderbilt Often Rumored.

Mrs. Smith Hollins McKim is regarded by many persons as the most beautiful woman in New York society. She is a Baltimorean by birth, a daughter of Captain Isaac Emerson and heiress to much wealth. When about seventeen she married Dr. Smith Hollins McKim. She was granted a retio divorce from him last October.

tant exhibitions. Society has persistently whispered that she might marry Mr. Alfred Vanderbilt, but a number of other society men are equally attentive to the fair divorcee, who so far has shown no intention of relinquishing her recently won freedom. Her beauty is of the blond order, and she is clever as well as beautiful. Should she become Mrs. Vanderbilt she is quite charming and brainy enough to assume the social leadership in New York which no one seems clever enough to capture since the death of the late Mrs. Astor.

PEACE AND WAR.

The biggest and best fighting ships afloat were on parade in British ports in honor of the coronation of King George V, each nation, which was represented in that peaceful exhibition of fighting power, showing what it could do in the way of designing and building commerce destroyers. Every "power" was showing its ugly war front and its ability to tear down the works of a peaceful and prosperous people whenever a nation's rage or wounded pride made necessary the resort to the fighting force.

It was fitting that at such a time and from such a scene the greatest ship of them all—the Olympic—designed and built wholly for commerce and peaceful pursuits should turn her back and majestically steam away across the Atlantic on her maiden voyage.

This giantess of the prosperous, peaceful ocean trade, nearly nine hundred feet long and eleven decks tall, anchored safely in New York harbor and discharged her cargo of passengers and merchandise without attracting a substantial fraction of the enthusiasm which marked the parade of fighting ships and the coronation of a king.

The achievement of the builders of the Olympic is greater than that of those who crowned the king, and the successful trip of this floating palace means more for humanity than all the warships in the coronation parade.

The Olympic was built to help men, not to hurt them. She was built and will be operated to improve conditions not make them worse.

Parents and children may in comfort cross the "boundless" seas secure in the grasp of that great ship. Families will be united in this world not separated for eternity. The world is better and happier for such achievements and why more appreciation is not shown is one of the unanswerable questions.

"ABSOLUTE LIFE" CANCER.

The developments in the trial of Evelyn Arthur See in the criminal court at Chicago are appalling. That such crimes could be committed in this country few people believe possible.

See is charged with kidnapping a mere girl, Mildred Bridges, the daughter of a well-to-do Chicago jeweler.

The girl, scarcely more than a child, and of an impressionable disposition, sentimentally inclined, is completely within the power of this man See who operates a morally vicious establishment in Chicago which he call the Inner Temple of the Absolute Life, a religion founded by See and maintained by him for his own vicious and immoral purposes. Miss Bridges is the third young girl who has fallen a victim to the hypnotic power of See and the authorities, so outrageous has the thing become, have taken a hand with the avowed determination of breaking up the whole shebang.

See's plan of operation was first to gain mastery over the mother and then her consent to possess himself of the daughter, according to the rules of Absolute Life bible which See himself wrote and of the teachings of which he claims to be the living example of purity and holiness.

The father of the girl who has lost wife and daughter, with his home a wreck, has been restrained with difficulty by the authorities from visiting a severe beating to the pious rascal who is responsible for the loss of all he holds dear.

This is not a case of religious fanaticism calling for leniency. It is a case of pure downright devilry which merits the severest punishment which the law can inflict. It is one of those cases too, which make the people absolutely disgusted with the law's delays and the formalities with which those charged with crime are protected.

For the average run of good people, it takes entirely too long to get at a fellow like this through the medium of the law.

People in this day and age are living on a higher moral plane than ever before and the aim is constantly up to higher and better things and all moral lepers of the stripe of this fellow See should be dealt with severely and in hurry-up order.

Such teachings are cancers on the morals of the nations and should be cut out quickly whenever and wherever found.

Much Joy Found in Adopted Child

By FRANCES J. SCHNEIDER

Are adopted children ever a comfort? Several years ago we laid our little daughter to rest and then our little son also passed away. God only knows the pain of parting and loneliness.

Some months ago we went to an orphan asylum and took a little girl not quite two years old. Our home has changed since then. The child has crept into our hearts and leaves no room for sadness.

Trouble? Yes, of course; but she is ten times more pleasure than trouble.

When we contemplated taking a baby our friends told us we did not know when we were well off and that certain people that did not have trouble were foolish to put their foot into it, and so forth. But when my baby puts her arms around my neck and says "mamma" I feel repaid for any trouble or worry she may be. My husband also loves her as though she were our own.

Moreover, we have friends in Ohio that have adopted two little girls and I know that they would also advise any one to do likewise.

POETRY FOR TODAY

THE SONG OF THE SICKLE.

I do not know if it is song,
But so it always seems to me
When the summer dusk is cool and long
And the world is beautiful to see—
Then it is that the sickle sings,
And the red, red clouds like burning ships
Go down the west with flaming wings
And the half-set sun is in eclipse.

In that sweet song is all the blest
And wondrous imagery of youth Remaining still undispossessed
By all the artfulness of truth.
The winds that ever bear the sweets
Of Araby are blowing still,
And Heaven, bending, fairly meets
The earth, just there beyond the hill.

The sickle's song is now a soft
And muted tripping far away,
And now a clamor borne aloft
Upon the afterwinds of day.
A song it is of harvests gold,
Of skies incomparably blue,
And matters when the world is old
Will still be beautiful and new.

I do not know if it is song,
But in its magic there is rest,
And tender recollections throng
The deep, deep spaces of my breast.
The miracles its music does
Are ever potent in its ring,
And I am still that child I was When first I heard the sickle sing.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

The silly season is all the year round for most people.

When a girl says she'll ask her mother, she already has.

Law is nothing but a hollow mockery when pianos can be banged the way they are in flats.

An awful lot of enthusiasm is wasted hating people who don't care whether you do or not.

A girl will add years to her age to arrive at being a young lady and subtract them to stay there.

A long row to hoe is when you are making a reputation and a short one when you are unmaking it.

The best of mothers has to lie incessantly to her children to preserve their belief in their father.

Anybody can tell a good thing that comes to him after it has gone about a thousand miles past him.

Some men are so self-satisfied that even if they had a wooden leg they could think it was becoming.

It's a very rare man that ever remembers his wife has at least some of the rights his business partner has.

A woman could vote better by the ribbons her party wore than most men do by the principles their claim.

The man who can't make money wants to make it to spend; the man who can make it wants to do it to make more with.

No matter how much money a man is glad to inherit from those ahead of him, he is never willing to have it inherited from him by those behind him.

It takes only three hearsay conversations for a rumor to become gossip, the gossip scandal and the scandal slander.—New York Press.

Hometown Helps

If the lot is small, say 40 by 150 feet, choose the low-growing shrubs, such as the spiraea of either prunifolia, thunbergii or bumalda families. These are hardy, low-growing plants about three feet in height. The spiraea thunbergii has very fine, light-green foliage, with little white flowers scattered along the branches. The spiraea bumalda, of the variety anthony waterer, is a very free flowering shrub, with crimson flowers. It is compact and low in growth. Spiraea prunifolia has drooping branches, with double white daisy-like flowers. The leaves of this variety assume brilliant hues in the fall.

Some time ago the writer was called in to admire a small garden almost choked with a profusion of ornamental plants and flowers. It was learned that but two years ago the yard was nearly devoid of vegetation, but that the little boy of the family commenced planting seeds and cuttings from the school garden supply. Soon the slumbering taste of the mother was awakened and now she tenderly cares, with the help of her enthusiastic boy, for this wilderness of beauty. If this school garden had accomplished no more, this one case would be sufficient recompense for all time and labor expended. Truly it is a beautiful and philanthropic work.—Los Angeles Times.

206.—Who were the people who lived in the land of Nod, where Cain found his wife?

Answer.—There were no people in the land of Nod, for Adam and his family were the only inhabitants of the earth. Cain married one of his sisters, as did others of Adam's sons. The statement that Cain built a city signifies, according to the broader use of language, that he built a house or citadel. In ancient times there was no reason why brothers and sisters should not marry; but now the law hindering their marriage, and hindering even the marriage of first and second cousins is, evidently, a very wise one. The reason for this is that at first our race was pure and no evil influences resulted from such intermarriage; but now, after six thousand years of accentuation of family peculiarities, we find that the result of marriage between brothers and sisters and between consins, is often imbecility, idiocy. This is another proof of the incorrectness of the Darwinian theory of the evolution of man. It is another proof of the Bible declaration, that man has fallen from the image of God in which he was created.

The Press and The Pulpit

Written for THE HERALD by Robert Stuart MacArthur, Pastor of Calvary Baptist Church of New York City.

The press and the pulpit as forces for righteousness ought never to be separated. Sometimes they are apparently placed in opposition to each other; they ought, however, always to be considered as allies in all that is noblest in civilization and divinest in humanity. They are friends and not foes; they are allies and not aliens. The ideal of each is best attained when both join hands and touch hearts for patriotism, humanity and religion.

The press is a tremendous force for good or for evil. In the totality of its influence it is today a force for righteousness. The newspaper is the university for the rank and file of our citizenship. Every issue of our best daily newspapers is a University Extension Course for tens of thousands of our citizens. The newspaper keeps us in touch daily with the civilized world. It enables the intelligent reader to put his finger on the pulse of humanity as it throbs around the globe. The telephone, the trolley and rural delivery are revolutionizing the United States in the interest of our noblest civilization. No man can really judge the distinctive characteristics of present-day civilization if he leaves out these three features of our time. Rural delivery makes the daily newspaper a potent force in tens of thousands of country homes. The farmer while waiting for his noonday meal feels the throb, through the daily newspaper, of the world's heart in all parts of the earth. Rural delivery makes the daily newspaper a necessity, an instructor, and an inspiration in rural homes all over our broad land.

Newspaper Ancient Institution.

The newspaper in some form is a very ancient institution. In both the Chinese and Roman Empires from an early period there were issues of newspapers corresponding somewhat to those of modern times. The Acts Diurna (Daily Occurrences) of an ancient Rome gave reports of military achievements, of games, sacrifices and other events occurring in various parts of the vast Roman Empire. Officers, called Actuarii, wrote these out by hand; and they were finally deposited in public archives. These newspapers were often posted in public places; they were also sent at intervals to officials in the provinces, and to army officers; thus the representatives of the government at the ends of the civilized world were made reasonably familiar with what was taking place in all parts of the vast empire. In Peking, the Tching pao (News of the Capital) was for many centuries issued daily. It contained imperial rescripts, decrees of the government and various kinds of official news. It is affirmed to be the earliest daily newspaper in existence. The modern newspaper is, of course, of composite origin. In the sixteenth century it consisted of single folio pages, sold by criers. We are told that the first examples of these news sheets appeared in 1498. The story of the growth of the modern newspaper is fascinatingly interesting and profoundly instructive.

It is easy to criticize the daily papers. Like all things human, they have their faults; they have also a great many excellencies. They have frequently changed the political conditions of cities, have more than once overthrown municipal evils of gigantic proportions. Cartoons have elected Presidents of the United States. The illiterate man can read the meaning of the cartoon when he cannot, or will not, read the editorial however eloquent and patriotic it may be. The newspaper ought not simply to echo public sentiment. It ought to create sentiment on right lines; it ought to be a leader, and not a follower. It is to be feared that sometimes the treasurer's office of great newspapers exercises too much influence over editorial opinions. The newspaper that dare hold and affirm the highest patriotic and moral ideals, will, in the end, secure the approval of our best citizens, and will be most successful even on its financial side.

Pulpit Has Not Lost Power.

The pulpit has not lost and never can lose its power. It is frequently affirmed that oratory is a lost art. We hear Jeremiaids regarding the men of our time as compared with the preachers of our earlier time, it is said, "There were giants in those days." We are all disposed to idealize and idolize the past. This tendency is true regarding actors, singers, sculptors, painters, orators and preachers. There is truth in the remark, "Memories geese are always swans." The old Count, in Gil Blas, affirmed that peaches were much larger "when we were boys," than now. Burke spoke of the giants of an earlier time, and of the men of his day as comparative dwarfs. When we look back upon the men of Burke's day—Chatham, Pitt, Fox, Sheridan and Burke himself, we are ready to say, "There were giants in those days." Carlyle was wrong when he declared that "Silence is the eternal duty of man," and that "England and America are going to nothing but wind and tongue." General Grant was wrong in his depreciation of the art of speechmaking. We ought rather to agree with Martin Luther when he said that "He who heartily despises Cicero in his affections speak well is a man." We can mation that it is most glorious to excel men in that in which men excel all other animals.

Forms of pulpit power change, but the power remains. The pulpit was never more potent than it is at this hour. Its sphere is vastly wider than it was even a generation ago. It now touches life at points once considered unbecoming its functions. We are realizing now that Terence was right when he said, "I am a man, and I deem nothing common to man for eign to me." The pulpit now recognizes the modern meaning of humanity. "The humanities" today are not simply the study of Greek and Latin, or any branches of polite learning, such as grammar, rhetoric, poetry and belles lettres. By "humanity" now we mean the quality of being humane; we mean kind dispositions, acts of benevolence and helpfulness in every form. The pulpit ought to touch life at all its points. Nothing should be beneath its notice that affects the welfare of the human race. It must care for the working man, for the welfare of the children, for the protection of factories from fire, from unsanitary conditions; and, in a word it ought to care for all the interests that make for the uplift of the race. Cowper was literally right when he said:

"I say the pulpit (in the sober use Of its legitimate, peculiar powers) Must stand acknowledged, while the world shall stand,

The most important and effectual guard,

Support and ornament of virtue's cause."

Man a Religious Being.

Man is a religious being. If we study the origin of the word "man" we shall find that it means, one who thinks, one who reasons, one who knows. Trace the word into the Latin and you have the word mens; the mind; trace it into English, and you have the word mean, in the sense of intend or propose, and also the word mind; these go back, without much doubt, to the Sanscrit word meaning to think; some etymologists, however, doubt whether primitive men could have thought of themselves by a term meaning to think. A man, if this etymology be correct is an animal who thinks, who reasons, who knows. Can animals reason? Sometimes it would seem as if they can. Probably no philosopher can clearly draw the line of demarcation between animal instinct and human reason. It is difficult to say where the instinct of the animal ends, and where the reason of man begins.

How shall you define the word man? Philosophers and poets all through the ages have endeavored to give definitions of man. Plato gave this definition: "Man is a two-legged animal without feathers." Diogenes heard Plato's definition, and the next day he came into the academy with a cock whose feathers he had plucked, and holding it before the pupils he said: "Behold Plato's man!" Then this clause was added to Plato's definition: "With broad, flat nails." The definition then became: "A man is a two-legged animal without feathers, and with broad, flat nails." That was the best, apparently, that Plato could give us in the way of a definition of man. Man has been called a "tool-making animal;" and again he has been called "the animal that can make a fire." Man has also been defined as "a laughing animal;" and as "an animal with thumbs."

What is a Man?

But what really is man? What is his essential character? What is that element in man which differentiates him from other animals? We may say that an element in this differentiation is the power of reason; but, as I have already said, it is difficult to draw the line between instinct and reason. We must go higher still. Man is a religious being; that is the distinctive quality in man as contradistinguished from other animals. Both Cicero and Plutarch call attention to the fact that no people has ever been discovered in which there were no traces of religious worship. If Plutarch and Cicero were writing today they might make their sentence much stronger; than they made it of their own time. With all the discoveries of tribes and nations, none has yet been found in which there was not some form of worship. The lost tribe in darkest Africa bows down at least before some fetish. The religious element is the distinctive quality in the human soul. Men are feeling out after God. The pulpit and the press ought to recognize the fact that man in his deepest nature is religious.

When the pulpit and the press work together for the best interests of the human race the eastern sky will be radiant with the crimson and gold of the millennial dawn!

Breakers Ahead.

"It will probably be many years before I meet my ideal."

"And meantime, what will you do?"

"Oh, get married, I suppose."

Refinement is what makes a man turn on his heel and go off to the club instead of staying at home and having a good, old-fashioned row with his wife.—Illustrated Mail.

GIRLS Battle With Big Muskrats

Canoeists Attacked While Paddling in the Allegheny River

Several Prominent Society Girls Have Terrible Experience With Rodents.

RODENTS LEAP INTO CRAFT

Panic Ensues When Several Occupants Are Bitten and Frail Boat Capsizes—Young Women Unable to Swim Continue Fight In Water and Are Finally Rescued by Young Men Who Witnessed Encounter From Shore—May Explain Other Mishaps.

Pittsburg, June 26.—While canoe-ing on the Allegheny river, seven prominent society girls camping at Oakmont had a terrible experience with a swarm of unusually large muskrats. Miss Hester Maitland was the leader of the party. She led them on a canoe paddle up the Allegheny river to Hulton.

The young women were making for the shore for luncheon when about 20 of the rats made a vicious attack on them. With their paddles the young women fought desperately for a quarter of an hour. Several of the big rodents got into the canoes occupied by Misses Rosa and Carolina Weller and Miss Maitland. Miss Carolina Weller and Miss Maitland were bitten. All the canoeists became panic-stricken and two of the canoes were capsized, throwing Martha Heck, Elizabeth Lavity and Marjorie Phillips into the river. The girls could not swim and when in the water the rats again attacked them.

Henry Miller of Ashinwall and a crowd of companions saw the young women battling in the water and rescued them with considerable difficulty.

Several prominent canoeists have been drowned in a mysterious manner near the same spot recently and it is generally believed that they met their deaths while battling with muskrats.

Bodies Drowned In The Ohio Recovered

Cincinnati, O., June 26.—The bodies of Annie Kees and Albert J. Handt-

Thursday night, were found in the Ohio river near this city. Handtman took Miss Kees out for a ride in his the bodies clasped together near the scene of the wreck of the launch. It is believed that the launch struck a coal barge and upset.

missed the government's suit to dissolve the combination. The decision, which is a clear victory for the railroads, ends litigation started by the government three years ago. The chief allegation was that the Harriman interests had conspired to monopolize traffic to the Pacific coast.

Wheat Damaged.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 26.—Several days of extreme hot weather following a prolonged dry period have caused great damage to small grain crops in South Dakota and in some localities wheat will not revive sufficiently to pay for harvesting. David son and McCook counties report a heavy rain.

Robbed During Church Service.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 26.—Brooks
E. Adams, treasurer of the First Christian church, was held up by a masked bandit and robbed of the church collection in the pastor's study, while a large congregation was listening to the morning sermon not 20 feet away.

The Baptists Denounce Barbarism of Russia Rev. McArthur to Move

REV. R. S. MAC ARTHUR

New Head of the Battist World Alliance.

New York, June 26.—Having been recently elected president of the Battist World Alliance, the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur announced to his congregation that it will be necessary for him to be much absent from his church (Calvary) on Fifty-seventh street. He will go soon to Russia to see the czar and to Rome to see the pope.

"The time has arrived," said the preacher, "when the czar and the pope must learn that this is the twentieth century, not the fifteenth, and when the voice of religious democracy must be heard even in Pe-terhof and the vatican."

He announced that next Wednesday evening, in Calvary church, 30 to 40 Russian Baptist ministers will be presented and several of them are here under bail, only to be rearrested and imprisoned the moment they return to Russia. One of them was suspended by his thumbs and flogged.
His wife was treated in the same way, and when cut down his wife dropped dead, while the man had fainted.

At the White House in Washington today these Russians are to be presented to President Taft. Dr. Mac-Arthur says that the United States government is being urged to use its influence with the czar of Russia to mitigate the punishment of these Baptists as much as he can. To induce him to do so and, if possible, to see the authorities of the Russian church, is the purpose of the visit of the new president of the alliance to Russia.

Convention Week For Knights Of The Grip

Columbus Entertains Three Branches of Commercial Travelers.

Columbus, O., June 26.—Three conventions of the Order of United Commercial Travelers of America will be held in Columbus this week. This morning the National Association of Secretary-Treasurers, made up from the ranks of the 500 secretary-treasurers of subordinate councils of the order in all parts of the country, opened their session.

Tomorrow the ancient mystic order Bagmen of Bagdad will open their convention. Wednesday morning the twenty-third annual session of the supreme council of the U. C. T. will open a four-day session. The new headquarters building will be dedicated during the meeting.

A LEADING CALL.

FORNIA DRUGGIST.

Pasadena, Cal., March 9, 1911.
Foley and Co., Gentlemen:—We have sold and recommended Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for years.
We believe it to be one of the most efficient expectorants on the market.
Containing no opiates or narcotics it can be given freely to children.
Enough of the remedy can be taken to relieve a cold, as it has no nauseating results, and does not interfere with digestion. Yours very truly,

Valet Dies From Burns Received At- tempting to Rescue Girls.

Nantucket, Mass., June 26.—There is only an even chance of the recovery of Thomas Kerr of New York from burns he sustained in his unsuccessful attempt to save the lives of Miss Helen Wilson of New York and Miss Mildred Dehaven of Brooklyn, when fire destroyed the boathouse of William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, chairman of the New York State Republican committee. Ulysses Pahud, a Frenchman, 21, employed by Mr.
Barnes as a valet, died several hours after the accident. Thurlow Weed Barnes, son of Mr. Barnes, is in a very serious condition, but the physicians say he will recover. His arms, face and legs were burned, and he inhaled considerable smoke. Mr.
Kerr's injuries are so severe that he will be disabled for life if he survives. His arms were terribly burned, as well as his legs, face and hands.

Valet Gives Up Life In Vain

Attempt to Throw Him Under Train For Shooting Companion.

Newark, O., June 26.—Special Policeman William Glenn shot Frank Savage three times, after the latter had refused to discontinue a dance in progress at his boarding house.
The trouble occurred in the foreign colony and after the shooting Glenn was beaten and kicked and then was dragged by a mob to the railroad tracks with the intention of throwing him under a train. He was rescued by spectators before a train arrived.
It is said at the hospital that Savage will die.

Parsonage Wrecked.

Cleveland, O., June 26.—Because they were refused permission to take a statue of the holy rosary from the Catholic church to display in a procession, a crowd of Sicilians, members of the church, attacked and wrecked the residence of their pastor, Rev. Francis J. Haley.

Druggists Doctors In Session.

Columbus, O., June 26.—One hundred and twenty-five delegates attended the open session of the fifth annual convention of the Ohio Association of Suggestive Therapeutics, which opened here this morning.

Hospital is Attacked By the Angry Rioters Object to Admission

Cleveland, O., June 26.—With a mob of men and girls, garment strikers, menacing Mt. Sinai hospital in an effort to have an injured Printz Biederman official ejected, police reserves were called to preserve order.
Miss Folsom, head matron of the hospital, became frightened when the first delegation of a dozen men made its demands, backed by a crowd numbering more than a hundred, gathered before the hospital. She telephoned for the police and the crowd was dispersed without trouble. A few hours later a second delegation petitioned Miss Folsom. On her refusal, bricks and stones were thrown and the rioters became threatening until dispersed by the police.

tain half a million dollars, on which the state will collect an inheritance tax. Granfield was killed in an automobile near here on May 7.

Bridge Is Under Guard.

Sandusky, O., June 26.—Aroused by the assault on nonunion bridge workers at Huron, when four men were hurt in a fight with 17 men, supposed to be from Cleveland, the county officials dispatched six men, armed with rifles, to guard day and night the bridge at which the fight took place.

"NOT NOW, BUT SOON," THE POLICE WERE TOLD AT THE M'CANN HOUSE

"You can't come in now—come back in thirty minutes and then you can look around" were the words that greeted Mayor Allen and Chief Devaney Saturday when they were making a trip through "flat iron row," at the Columbus avenue and Market street intersection, looking for a trace of sanitary conditions and which they failed to find.

The above words came from Dave McCann, who, with his wife, has been occupying the largest (16 by 32) "double flat" in the John Dalley collection of "flat iron" flats. The mayor and chief wanted to look over the condition of the flat, as it was previously used for a blacksmith shop and had been converted into a two room house by the landlord, John Dalley. Incidentally the two men suspected that a case of "cold ones" was on tap, and that two persons were keeping the cold ones company.

When Dave appeared at the door and saw his visitors, he trembled as if he had a sudden attack of ague, and his wife assisted him in barring the door with their bodies. A parley ensued, but Dave was firm, and would allow of no admittance, so the mayor and chief went on their way, returning in time to find that a certain heavy set meat cutter, and a heavy set driver of a lumber wagon in the city, had been in a back room. However, no evidence of the afore-said "cold ones" could be found until later, when Chief Devaney located a beer case hidden in the weeds on the old fair ground, where it had been carried by a man for who, the chief is now preparing to give his undivided attention. The case bore McCann's name.

Within a few hours after McCann had been given such a fright, he had packed up his few belongings, and in company with his wife, left the premises, and his whereabouts is not known. The circumstances connected with the case may prove interesting if Dave can be located, according to Chief Devaney. Meanwhile the "double flat" remains without (human) occupants.

There is a certain Pittsburgh broker who insists that every clerk in his establishment shall present an immaculate personal appearance. "If you care to retain your position in this house," he said one morning to one offender whom he had summoned to the private office, "you will have to devote more attention to your toilet. Why, man, you present the appearance of one who has not shaved for a week."

"Beg pardon, sir," said the clerk, "but I am raising a beard."

"That's no excuse," said the boss. "You must do that sort of thing outside of business hours."—Harper's Weekly.

Old-Time Buckwheats.

How well we recall the old-fashioned buckwheat cakes, The buckwheat cakes we had in the days of long ago; The buckwheat cakes that rose in the night till they lifted The top from the jar and would then overflow. The Main Point.

The Englishman and the American were talking about honesty among men.

"Speaking about honest men," said the American, proudly, "our George Washington was the most honest man in the world has ever known. Why, he took a hack at the cherry tree and then told his father about it."

The Englishman pondered in silence for a long time. Finally he drawled:

"It may be deuced clever in George telling his father about taking the hack, but tell me this."

"Well, what is it?"

"Did he pay the driver?"

An April Fool.

Addison Mizner, the well-known viveur, related, at an April fool dinner in New York, some April fool memories.

"Another April first," said the young man, "as I strolled in Broadway thinking up jokes, I spied a pretty girl I knew. Very elegant and trim, she held her skirt up with one hand and threaded her way daintily across the crowded street."

"I clutched the arm of an old gentleman with white side-whiskers and a fur-lined overcoat."

"Would you please, sir," I gasped hoarsely—and I pressed my hand on my chest—"would you please call that young lady for me? I have lung trouble and can't raise my voice. Her name's Gertrude."

"The old man made a quick step forward, and as I dodged into an office building he shouted:

"Gertrude! Gertrude!"

"She gave a start, but didn't turn. 'Gertrude!'"

"She paused half way across the street and looked back at the old gentleman. He was a stranger to her, and with a puzzled frown she went on her way again."

"Gertrude!" he roared. "Gert!"

"And this time, when she turned, he waved vigorously and preemptorily to her."

"Gertrude hastened back. She bit her lip, and her pretty eyes flashed with a hard and ominous glitter. The old man looked behind him, and his surprise was great when he found me gone. What a time the high-spirited pair must have had together! Hidden in a doorway, I split my sides laughing as I watched them squabble."—Louisville Times.

Poor Billiards.

Calvin Demarest, the amateur billiard champion, described, at a dinner in Chicago, some poor billiard tables.

"One summer in the country," he said "another man and I were over taken by a storm and had to go in to a tavern for shelter. The rain fell steadily. We had three or four hours before us. Time began to hang heavily on our hands."

"Landlord," said I, "do you happen to have a billiard table?"

"Sure," said the landlord. "Sure. Just step this way, gents."

"He proudly threw open the door of a dark, stuffy room. We saw an antiquated table with a patched cloth, and in the corner was a rack of crooked cues."

"Any balls?" said I.

"Sure," said the landlord, and he unlocked a closet, and laid on the table three white balls, all alike—there was no spot, you know."

"But see here, I remonstrated 'Now do you tell these balls apart?'"

"Oh, that's all right," said he "You soon get to know 'em by their shape."—Detroit Free Press.

The Hello Girl Scored.

At Washington the newspaper correspondents are telling the following story about Representative Walter Brownlow, of Tennessee. Recently he called up somebody at the White House. He had a fierce time Central, who had tried to get the number for him, appeared to be in experienced or asleep. Mr. Brownlow, ordinarily the most patient of men, finally lost his patience.

"Look here!" he shouted; "quit this foolishness! Either get me the White House or give me some place where I may at least talk to my intellectual equal!"

Silence for a moment, and then over the wire came a good loud "Hello!" in a man's voice.

Mr. Brownlow was much relieved. "What place is this?" he asked.

"The Government Hospital for the Insane, across the river," came the answer.

Representative Brownlow is now endeavoring to ascertain that central's name. He wants to have her promoted. That's what he says to the newspaper men.—Judge.

Who Taught Her Caution?

Isabel, aged four, was talking to an imaginary friend over the telephone, when her mother heard her say, "Wait a minute, Rocky, my brother is right here listening to all you say, and my mother is in the room too; don't tell me about it now."—The Delineator.

"I know," said the bashful young man, "that I act like a bear sometimes."

"I never noticed it," she said. "Bears hug people."

A Better Runner.

Being pursued by a farmer and his three sons, after being caught in the chicken yard, a young colored person had just made up his mind that he was not eluding his followers as quickly as might be, when a long-eared jack rabbit jumped up from the roadside and started down the road ahead of him. The would-be chicken thief had run a few hundred feet further when the farmer and his boys were astonished to here the negro shout, in a voice that quavered with fright though unrestrained: "Say, for de Lord sake, you rabbit, get out of de way and let some one run who can run."—Argonaut.

Lesson from the Past.

They had begun to call Wellington the Iron Duke.

"Well," he said, after the first shock of it was over, "I'm not as hard a citizen, at that, as if I were a steel king."

Still, he could not help thinking what an absurdity it would be for the sculptors to perpetuate him in bronze.

What He Does.

"Johnny," said the teacher, "can you give us a definition of the word speculation? Let us suppose, for example, that your father has $500 and that he desires to buy several thousand bushels of wheat he never expects to really see or possess. What does he do?"

"He loses his $500."—Chicago Record-Herald.

They Didn't See.

A trio of professional story tellers was off in a corner of the club, spinning yarns. Brown had just told a most unbelievable story, and the other two glanced at each other questioningly.

"Well, I assure you, gentlemen," said Brown, "if I hadn't seen it myself I shouldn't have believed it." "Ha—h'm—well," said one of the two doubtful ones, "you must remember, old man, that we didn't see it."—Lippincott's Magazine.

His yawns enormous were to see, His languor was intense, That poor chap lacked the energy To sit upon a fence.
In balance there he could not keep, Without some effort made, Stretched him where the grass was deep And slumbered in the shade.

DESIRE FOR ROMANCE LEADS TO SYMPATHIES

THE desire for romance—how it thrills through a woman's heart, be she young or old, doesn't it? There is somehow never a time when the practical details of every-day life cannot be lightened by the memory of romantic years of love and wooing, or brightened by visions of the future when the ideal man shall, like Loch-Invar, ride out of the west and sweep her off her feet.

But romance is mostly banished from life nowadays. We are so practical and full of facts about love and courtship and marriage and babies that Cupid does not have a fair show, and it is only the women who, wistful-eyed and full of dreams, go in quest of romance who ever really find it.

They are a brave little army, however, fighting against conventions and modern life, and seven of them have, according to the daily papers, won happiness in romantic fashion within the past few weeks.

Each little story reveals in its simple telling the secrets of a woman's heart, and shows how even such modern things as electric bulbs or cold storage eggs may be aids to love.

One is the tale of a girl who, helping her father in his electrical supply house, slipped a little note into a package with a pocket lamp, and now is to wed the man who found it.

Then there is the story of another girl who hid a handkerchief embroidered with her name in a grove at a summer resort, and is now engaged to the man who found it and searched for her, with the aid of Cupid and a city directory, and there are also five other stories of women who, ignoring the men that they knew in an "every-day sort of way," have sent out into the world a plea for fate to bring them "their true love."

It's all very youthful, and perhaps many-wise people will say that such wooing and weddings lead more often to divorce than to happiness, yet to instill a little romance, a little zest and excitement into life does make our daily path much easier to tread, doesn't it? And the girl or woman who brings romance, with its rosy dreams, into her life, and who strives to uphold ideals is more often than not the one who preserves the joy of youth in her eyes and her mind, and is attractive to every one.

OVERCOMING OBESITY IN ROUTINE WAY

As a change from the strenuous exercises usually advised for obesity, why not embody these gymnastics in the everyday tasks, thereby adding interest to the tasks and grace to the body?

If your waist is inclined to thickness you can incline it to suppleness by always washing your hands in the bottom of the bathtub. Do this, if possible, without bending the knee. If faithfully pursued, this little practice will accomplish as much as ten minutes of bending exercises.

Have you a desire to improve your carriage and add weight to your appearance? Have the hooks in your wardrobe almost beyond your reach so that every time you go for your hat or a garment you will have to stretch your arm upward and stand on tiptoe.

Do not sit down to put on your shoes and stockings. You may have to perform all sorts of queer antics to accomplish your purpose, but the bending exercises you go through in doing so is worth more than those of the gymnasium, because you will work harder with a tangible object in view.

Hair brushing is a wearisome task, but if the desire to move with grace is put into every stroke, and the wrist is held firm, the action is certain to be an excellent hand and wrist exercise. If you do your own marketing walk to and from the market, briskly, taking long, even strides and swinging the limbs from the hip without bending the knee. All the bending and reaching exercises of your household work may be transferred into benefits, if they only will be considered in that light and if the mind will work with the body in tabulating them as beneficial exercises instead of physical exertions.

Wow!

Says Mr. Jawback: "Gee, but you women think it's awful to be an old maid, don't you?"
Answers Mrs. J. right off the reel: "Yes, it would appear so, to look at the dubs we marry to escape it!"

In the Spring.

I'll tell you what I'd like to do, today.
If only bosses would accommodate; I'd like to quit this job and go away, And let the ink stand, and the paper weight!

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

This charming design offers us a waist which can be made of any of the wash materials in vogue each season, and also of some of the more dressy fabrics, such as silk, messaline,

WHY HOLDING HANDS IS SO DELIGHTFUL

Suggestion is Mightier Than Reality, Mamie Tells Belle.

WHY is it, Belle, that men have been known to turn their backs on the shortest bathing suits ever manufactured for land wear exclusively, while in the city the only men that fail to rubber when the wind blows just a wee bit stronger than a respectable wind ought to blow are the blind ones? Suggestion is the answer, Belle. In almost everything except money and meals, the suggestion of a thing makes a stronger impression on people than the thing itself, because suggestion is first cousin to imagination, and without imagination we'd still be monkeys.

Why would the average girl rather hold hands with the right young man than eat ice cream? When you come to think of it, Belle, holding hands is only an overgrown handshake, so why ain't it monotonous instead of interesting? Because, Belle, when it's the proper person that completes the circuit, just the fact that he's holdin' your hand, bein' a suggestion of what's so far down in his heart that he can't bring it up into words, is a thousand times more expressive than anything he could say on the subject. That's why I'd advise all bashful, tongue-tied and thick-witted young men that are anxious to see whether two can live as cheaply as one to keep their mouths shut as much as possible and stick to makin' themselves understood by the noiseless method of holdin' hands. It'd probably embarrass both of 'em to death if he started to get red in the face, muss up his hair and almost choke tryin' to blurt out his feelin's in great big chunks. But if he just gives her a little suggestion of his state of mind by takin' her hand in the half dark parlor and just freezin' in' onto it without sayin' a word, her imagination'll tell her the rest just the way it ought to be told and they'll both be really enjoying it every second of the time.

And then some day, after the treatment's been kept up long enough, she'll suddenly find out that she knows all about it without the shadow of a doubt, and they'll fall into each other's arms and there y'are.

Transferring Designs

For transferring Tribune embroidery patterns: A great many ways have been given for transferring the Tribune embroidery designs, but I think my way the best. Place a sheet of carbon paper on a smooth surface, carbon side up. Then place goods to be embroidered right side next to carbon. Now lay your pattern on goods and pin it securely to goods only, leaving the carbon paper free. You may now go over the pattern with a pencil as usual, and at any time in the proceedings and you may fit pattern and goods together and see that you left out none of the design, and there is no danger of disarranging the pattern and marring your design.

Fried Green Peppers

Cut open, lengthwise, four green peppers. Remove seeds, slice peppers crosswise, and lay in boiling water. Let them stand until the water is cold. Drain and wipe peppers and fry in butter. Serve with fish.

Some of the new fringes are mere edgings of tiny balls, others are of the pendant stave, each strand being made up of several tiny buttons, olives, etc. Black and white are most seen, but colors are obtainable.

taffetas, challis, cashmere and the like. Front and back are in panel effect, formed by a simulated box plait. In front there are short tucks at the shoulders and the garment is provided with regulation shirt sleeves finished with plain cuffs, to be worn with link buttons. The collar of this waist is a novelty. It is of the turnover order, but it does not extend all around the neck, instead it ends just at the edges of the front panel. This makes it quite easy to fit.

The pattern (5166) is cut in sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 2½ yards of 36 inch material, with ¼ yard of 24 inch silk for the collar.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

Use of Brushes

If when washing especially dirty clothes that have to be rubbed on the board one would use a clean scrubbing brush kept for the purpose, laying the garment on the board and using the brush instead of your knuckles, you will find it a much easier way and a great saving of the poor knuckles.

I always use a brush kept for the purpose to clean the sink, used with a few drops of kerosene. It keeps the porcelain clean at a saving of hands.

I have one also to use to clean rugs, using two basins of water, one lukewarm with a little ammonia, the other clear to rinse the brush. Going over the rug a small part of the surface at a time makes it like new, and the work is much easier than with a cloth.

The only proper way to wash a corset is with a stiff brush, using in the same manner.

Curtain

"I am, then, really the first woman you ever loved?" There were tones of deep affection in her voice.

"I swear most solemnly that you are the very first woman I have spoken to of love, Mary—the only one."

"In that case I will grant your request to meet you in the park at 2 o'clock," she replied softly.

He clasped his hands in an ecstasy of bliss. "Heaven! What joy!" he cried.

"You will surely be there, my only love?" she cooed.

Eustace gazed into her eyes. "You can count on my being there," he replied. "I never missed keeping an appointment of that kind yet."

Cucumber Catsup

Grind a quantity of fresh green cucumbers in a meat grinder. Save every bit of the juice, measure it, then throw away the juice. Use same amount of vinegar as juice when measured. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Bottle in airtight bottles. Do no cork. This will keep indefinitely.

Strawberry Jam

Put 4 pounds of washed and hulled small sweet strawberries into a preserving kettle; wash them with a wooden washer, add ½ pint of water and let cook gently for half an hour, stirring constantly; then add 3 pounds of granulated sugar, previously heated in the oven, and cook until very thick. Turn into small glass cans and seal with paraffin when cold.

Swiss Eggs

Butter a dish, lay over it thin slices of cheese. Break in carefully 6 eggs, add 1-2 cream, or cream sauce, 1-2 cup grated cheese seasoned with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with crumbs. Bake brown.

Graham Short Cake

Two cups graham meal, 1 cup flour, 1 cup sweet milk, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon soda, salt, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar or 2 teaspoons baking powder. Mix stiff but do not knead it.

Tart Paste

One-half cup each butter and lard mixed in 2 cups flour, 1-2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon cream tartar, 1-2 teaspoon soda. Use this paste for meat pies.

Dale Salad

One pound of dates, 2 sliced bananas, 4 oranges cut in small pieces, juice of 1 lemon. Serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

Waiting for It.

"Is that volume of your poems printed yet?"
"No, not yet."
"I wish there was some way of hurrying it up."
"Anxious to see it, eh?"
"Man, I'm nearly dead from insomnia!"

Peace in Prospect.

"Are you making progress in your plans for complete peace and harmony?"
"I think so," replied the eminent philanthropist. "I hope, in time, to be able to donate a million or so to some good cause without arousing all sorts of envious strife."

Extremes.

"Your trouble comes from ill regulated credulity," said the warning friend.
"I don't quite understand."
"Before you and this man were married you believed everything he told you. Afterward you didn't believe anything."

Could Have Either.

The Bounder—I say, old man, I wish you'd make a point of being in this evening. I—ah, want to see you about marryin' one of your gals."
The Major—With pleasure. Which do you want—the cook or the housemaid—what?
